

Have A Pest-Free Home This Autumn

Description

Before you know it, summer is over, the air is turning colder and the green leaves are starting to turn into vibrant colors of orange and red. Autumn is here, and in this transition season to winter you can go apple picking, visiting pumpkin patch, stuffing a scarecrow, or you can go on a nature hike. We bet you™re feeling a little flustered at getting your outdoor space ready for all the Halloween fun. There™s the lawn to look after, a clean and tidy space in which to impress guests and then that little annoying factor of knowing which pests to avoid, and even prevent ruining all the fall festivities. Companies that offer az pest control services (or other companies that offer similar services in your own area) will offer a customized pest control service to help reduce stress, but what about in between these services?

Good news! It can be done with pest control electronic you can get from Pest Free USA.

In the meantime, here are our top tips to keeping irritating pests at bay this fall.

Farewell to Ants

Just like mosquitoes, ants are pesky creatures on the lawn and even inside your home. They can bite rather painfully and can be an issue for you and your pets. To prevent ants from ruining your fall fun, try this:

- Stay away from ant mounds

- Seal up cracks and crevices and replace weather stripping to stop the ants getting into your home
- If you do spot ant mounds on your property, call a professional pest control company for help

Say Goodbye to Fleas

Fleas are a nuisance for you and your furry family members. Try these suggestions to keep fleas away from your home:

- Frequently check your pets for fleas and any flea dust
- Mop your floors, clean your furniture and vacuum your carpets regularly
- If you do suspect an infestation of fleas, call an exterminator

Block Entry of Rodents

In the colder months, rats and mice will look for a warm place where they can also get food. These pests usually come in groups and can squeeze through the smallest of holes. Here's how you can stop them from entering your home:

- Keep your food in airtight containers
- Seal up cracks and holes in your house

Sometimes wildlife will still find their way into your home no matter what you do, that's when it's a good idea to call in the experts. Professional help from Wildlife Removal Services will ensure that any wildlife is removed in a safe, humane way and will ensure they stay out.

Shoo Away The Roaches

These cockroaches, albeit shy ones and don't like to be seen especially during daytime, spread different kinds of dangerous bacteria and can trigger asthma. Here's what you should do when you notice a roach infestation: call a pest control professional.
