

Viking Tactical Motorcycle Sissy Bar Backpack

Description

Motorcycle riding has become a part of our lives. Of course, motorcycles are an easy means of transportation and thrilling at the same time. Now, what makes a motorcycle your good commuting partner.

Here, in this review article, youâ€™ll get the answer to this question. So, stay with Going Dad and keep reading.

Other than the best quality motorcycle riding gear, a quality motorcycle luggage bag of any type is what makes your motorcycle a good commuting partner or source.

There is a vast variety of motorcycle luggage bags available and every motorcyclist picks up according to their liking or need. So, this piece of work is for those who do not like to give their bikes a bulky look and in the meantime, they also need an alternative luggage compartment to carry their stuff.

If you fall in the same category as me, motorcycle saddlebags are the true option for you. They can do all for you if you know how to get the maximum output from them. So, here we will be reviewing the Viking Tactical Motorcycle Sissy Bar backpack to find out, how good it is and it is capable of being called your riding partner.

Let's begin with the adjustable sternum clip and waist straps that come standard on this Large Tactical Backpack, which has a storage capacity of 2700 cubic inches. Ergonomically built with hook and loop ties for easy off-the-bike carrying. Further, it also has padded shoulder straps that can be stowed when you want to secure the bag to the sissy bar or can also be used as a conventional backpack. The top compartment features Velcro strips for adding your patches, although it comes complete with the removable USA and Viking Bags patches. You can add more according to your likings.

In addition to that, it comes with two additional cases: one for sunglasses and one versatile pouch for external storage that can be quickly attached to the front compartment's webbing. Both bottle holders are large enough to carry two 25-ounce side bottles. The best feature of this bag is that it opens flat to 180 degrees, making packing and unpacking a breeze.

Moreover, my favorite thing about Viking Bags is their real-quick shipping system. Your product will be shipped within 24 hours after placing your order. Additionally, they send you the tracking number of your product via email, so you can easily track the location of your product and how long it will take to come to you. And, within 3-5 days your order will reach your doorstep.

I hope you liked the review and you will help find yourself this cool motorcycle sissy bar backpack by visiting Viking Bag's official website at www.vikingbags.com
