

What's in the Grass?: #MySundayPhoto 04.05.15

Description

As always, I have my favorite photo subject to share with you for #MySundayPhoto. We've already been having borderline hot weather in Texas (nothing new), so finding shade to play is a must.

There's a small, grassy area in our neighborhood with plenty of shade from tree cover and Avery enjoys exploring the new territory. I wish I could take credit for this excellent shot of our daughter, but my wife, Going Mom, let her skill shine for this one.

Not a clue what she was finding there, but guess we never really know what our kids find most of the time. As long as she doesn't eat it, it's okay. Right? Right?

Since it's hard to just share one, here's a pic I snapped on my phone. The quality is not as great, obviously, but that smile turns it into a priceless work of art.

How is the spring-time weather coming along where you live?

Do you have any low quality pics of your smiling kid(s) that you are simply in love with?

Date Created
2015/04/04

default watermark