

Going Dad™s Top Ten Pinterest Picks (6): Baby Proof Your Home!

Description

You had to of known this one was coming, right? At this point, I™d expect to make these posts related to what we™re currently experiencing/learning with Avery.

Right now, she can sit up without even trying. Seriously, she™ll wake in the middle of the night and all of the sudden, she™s upright!..and crying.

She eventually tumbles over and will (usually) fall back asleep.

Now the next big milestone is crawling and/or walking, and we need to get our house prepared! Of course there™s always something we™ll miss and won™t find out until she finds it for us, but thankfully Pinterest is here to offer a helping hand.

By the way Avery is able to move around just by rolling and scooting, it™s only a matter of time before she™s getting into anything within reach. If you have a baby that™s about to be or already is becoming more mobile, I hope these top ten picks help get you prepared.

BABY PROOFING

IS YOUR CUTE BABY ROLLING OVER ALREADY?

Before you know it, she'll be scooting herself around, pulling herself up on furniture and then walking around the house.

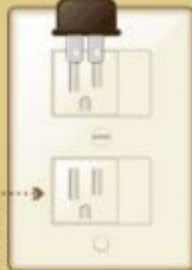

That's right—your baby will become mobile. What does that mean for you? For starters, a lot of running around and more love for nap time, but it also means that you need to get your house in order so that your precious baby won't hurt herself.

That's right, we're talking baby proofing. Here's a checklist to make sure there are no hidden dangers.

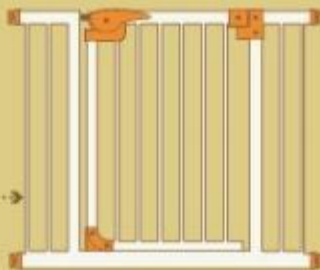

Unintentional home injury deaths to children are caused primarily by fire and burns, suffocation, drowning, firearms, falls, choking, and poisoning.

Safety Around the House

Keep electrical cords hidden or out of reach

Outlet Cover
Place covers over unused outlets. Use outlet covers or sliding outlet plates instead of outlet plugs, which can pose a choking risk.

Safety Gates
Gates are a must at the top and bottom of stairs, but can also be used if you don't want your child to roam unattended into certain rooms or areas.

Trashcans
Place locks on all trashcans so baby can't get in and play with/eat what's inside.

Carbon Monoxide & Smoke Detectors
There should be at least one carbon monoxide detector on every floor of the home and a smoke detector on the ceiling of each bedroom.

2000 # of children ages 14 and under who die each year from home injury in the U.S.

3. DIY baby gate? Yes please, the store-bought ones are pricey!!

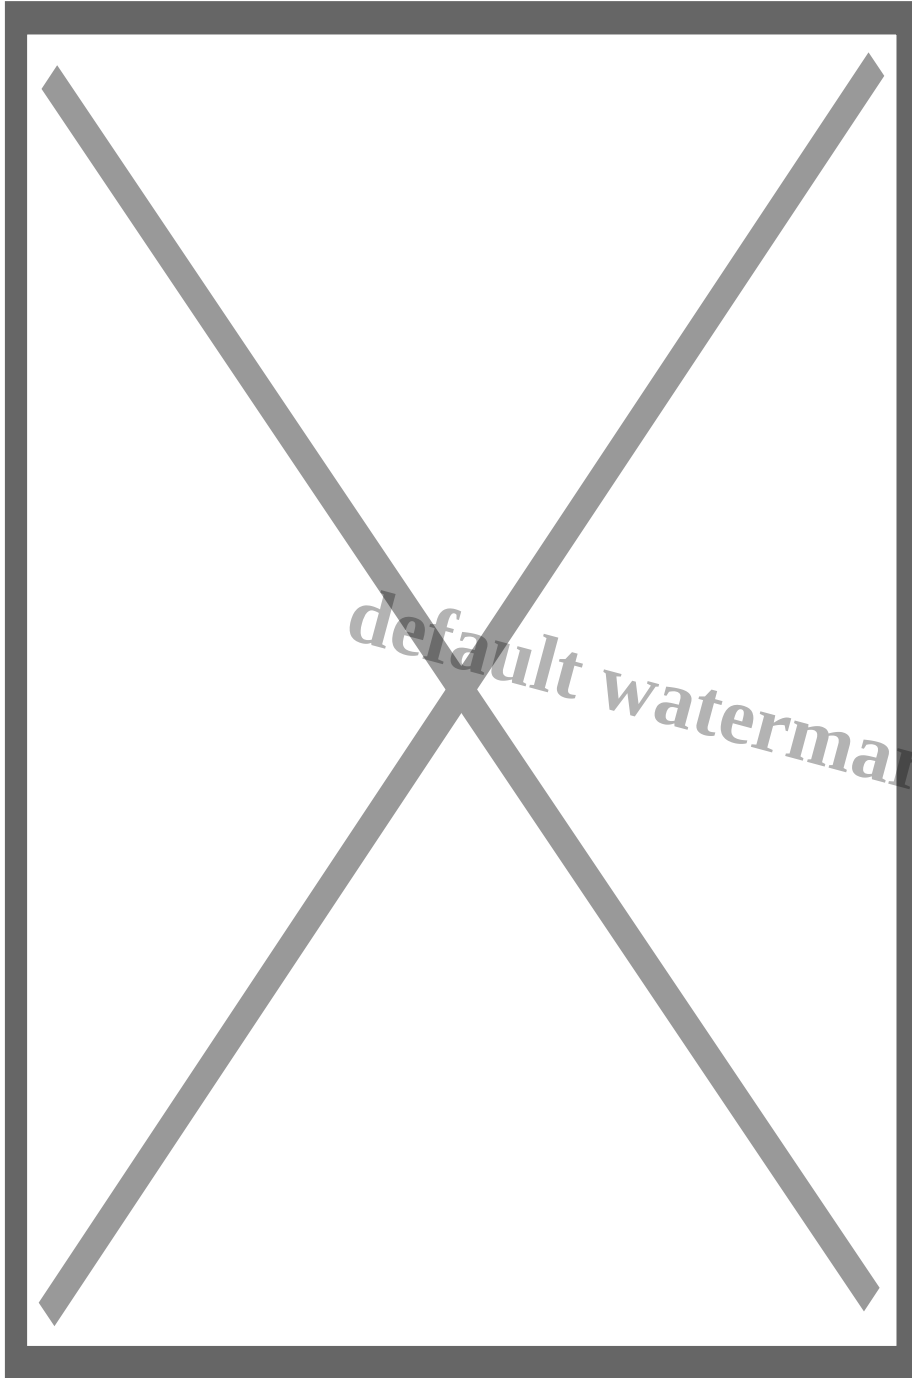

4. We donâ€™t have stairs in our home, but Iâ€™m sure many of you do and would like to NOT put holes anywhere. So, here you go!

5. Pool noodles to the rescue! It may not be the prettiest way to baby proof, but you might as well get used to the fact that having a baby isnâ€™t always pretty! Weâ€™re slowly catching on!..

---

6. I shouldnâ€™t have to explain the reasoning here; babies in trash = no good. I didnâ€™t even think of the trash until seeing this Pin!

---

7. Well looky here, the pool noodles make another safety appearance. Again, is it pretty? No. But will it save your kid from busting their lip or worse? I sure hope so!

8. Room by room tips on baby proofing. Just skip to the rooms you need and see if thereâ€™s any new ideas.

9. Okay, last pool noodle Pin. Only because I have one left before ten. you could really surround your home in pool noodles! Hmmm, wonder if Going Mom would approve?

10. Just in case we missed something from the above pins, hopefully this will complete your list of to-doâ€™s!

So, are you ready to baby proof your home? Have you already proofed thinking you were all set and found something else?

Let me know where you are in the process and please, share any tips you might have to offer!
