

20 Month Photo Session: Rocking The Ponytail

Description

My wife started putting Avery's hair in a ponytail not too long ago and it's the cutest thing to see. Parenting bias aside, you can't argue with her tiny top tail paired with that precious face.

I mean...amiright? That was the only still shot we got out of this constantly growing and non-stop crazy girl. I think her hair looks a little like Cindy Lou Who from How the Grinch Stole Christmas.

Today we are back at it with our family from PA. This time, instead of a brewery, we are checking out a new vodka distillery that's close-by. The name of the vodka is TreyMark and, get this, it's made with black-eyed peas as the main ingredient!

I've found that I have been growing a little tired of beer and enjoy sipping my libations rather than drinking in volume. Needless to say, I'm excited and hope we all have a great time as my mom continues her 60th birthday celebration with friends and family!

Now, on to the 20 month photos. I don't have much to say, but I think "crazy", "cute", "hair", and "poor bear" sum it up quite well. Check them out and tell me if you agree.

Peek-a-boo with her bear.

More peek-a-boo orâ€¦

â€¦oh, yep, eating his face.

Just stretching the legs. Gotta keep all limbs flexible as a toddler!

Hey, I see the camera!!

Ahh, she loves her bear.

Oh wait! ahhhh, she loves the arm on her chair.

Annnddd apparently no love for the bear.

So, would you agree with my four words of summation? Seriously, that poor bear never catches a break!

Ever try a vodka or another spirit distilled differently from the mainstream? If not, would you?

Does your kid have a favorite stuffed animal that they love to abuse but also love?
