

Going Reviews: Down To Earth Toys – Eco-Friendly Toys for Kids of All Ages

Description

Having a baby certainly opens your eyes to so many things never considered before; at least not for me. Sure, I™ve looked into safe plastics for heating and storing food, but never thought twice about the hidden dangers in plastic toys. And now with Avery™s teething in high gear, she™ll try to chew on ANYTHING!

Even if the toys are touting a “BPA Free” label, chances are they come from China (seems like everything does) and even if they have since stopped using lead paint as was an issue before, I don™t have a lot of trust left. Plus, if Avery is going to chew on something, I™d rather it be something natural and free of chemicals.

Enter Down To Earth Toys; a family-owned and operated business making earth-friendly toys from the USA and Europe. You won™t find chemical-laden toys from this eco-conscious business who strive to be as “Green” as possible by recycling and re-using whenever possible.

Needless to say, I was excited to find Down To Earth Toys in my search for safe, economical and non-plastic toys for Avery. To add to the excitement, I was thrilled when Carrin from Down To Earth Toys agreed to send their wooden Cherry Clutch Rattle with a heart!

The rattle is as smooth as the finest silk and handmade craftsmanship is of the highest quality.

Immediately upon receipt, I took the rattle from its thoughtful packaging and handed it to Avery for the official first review.

Although itâ€™s called a rattle, it doesnâ€™t sound like what youâ€™d hear in a typical plastic rattle with the raspy sound. Since this is wood, itâ€™s more of a very soft clunky noise that wonâ€™t annoy you after a minute of shaking. Plus, who has time to shake when your baby fangs need soothing?

Avery took to her new wooden toy with glee as I took her plastic toys away. She didnâ€™t seem too upset!

We now play with/chew on the rattle every day and I'm grateful to have something made in the USA from a well-deserving family owned business like Down To Earth Toys.

Since Avery's first birthday is fast approaching (so it seems), I think we'll be perusing other toys they sell soon. They also make great gifts!

Be sure to check out and "Like" Down To Earth Toys on Facebook to keep up to date on new toy arrivals and specials.

Thank you, Carrin, for allowing me the opportunity to review one of your many awesome children's toys!

Date Created
2014/08/02