

Monthly Memories Recap: Her First 2 Years

Description

Now that weâ€™re past the 2 year mark, I will be changing my usual Monthly Memories posts going forward. Still not dead set on how Iâ€™ll go about it, but I figured it would be good to put all of the past memory posts together.

This weekend flew by (as usual) and our one plan to go out to take family photos got nixed from a bad cold / possibly turned sinus infection. Her eyes keep getting crusty and looked so swollen all of Sunday. I think this pic pretty much sums up how she feelsâ€™

Poor girl, lucky she has an awesome Mommy who stuck by her side and gave her lots of love all day. She still gave it what she could and remained playful part of the day, and even enjoyed watching some "crazy football" as she is currently repeating a lot. That, and "blue plate tonight."

Pretty low key weekend, as we prefer, minus the sick kid, so nothing else new to share. Hopefully Iâ€™ll be able to report our girl is fully recovered before Thanksgiving rolls around. Until then, on with the compilation of Monthly Memories.

Since thereâ€™s no memories post for the first 4 months, Iâ€™ll just share pics to see her progression from the start. Then, from 5 months, my first Memories from my Xth Month Since Going Dad post, weâ€™ll go all the way to 24 months.

Wow, if you actually went through them all, thank you, for one, and I bet youâ€™re a close friend/relative. Or just love seeing our precious girl, in which case I donâ€™t blame you. ðŸ™,

Now, if youâ€™ll please excuse me, Thanksgiving is coming up fast, and Iâ€™ll be busy working on the few dishes weâ€™re having at our tradition-in-the-making gathering. Hopefully with a healthy toddler tagging along as my official taste-tester.

Have a wonderful Monday!
