

16 Month Photo Session: Mad to Glad in a Second

Description

I completely lost track of Avery's photo session posts with the last one being her 10 month photos. But, hopefully this will get me back on track to capture her growth month by month.

Let me play catch-up and post at least one photo for each month missed.

Yeah, so we botched her birthday and never took a pic of her in the chair with the bear. Ha, I love unconscious rhyming!

She turned 16 months on March 15, but we were a couple days late at taking the photos. As usual, it was late and she was cranky for the shoot, as you can see at the beginning. Luckily, her bear knows how to instantly cheer her up! She went from madâ€¦

â€¦to calm/kind of smirking with her bearâ€¦

â€¦to full on giggle-fest 2015!

And she even stopped and smiled for a good picture. This is very rare!

But, just like most monthly photo sessions, the bear got the shaft.

Annndddd off you go, bear!

“Oops, did I do that?”

We set the bear back on the chair several times, but Avery finds a way to make kick him off every time.

All in all, the session went better than I expected. One thing’s for sure, our girl is growing, fast, and we need to make the most of each day with her while we can. From what I hear, kids grow into unruly pre-adolescents that are embarrassed to hang out with their cool parents. What gives?!

Glad to play catch-up and get Avery’s monthly progression published for the world to see! It won’t be long until I’m posting her 17 month photos!..shhheeeesh!
