

SnoofyBee Clean Hands Changing Pad: Fear No Diaper Change!

Description

Iâ€™ve come to terms with the fact that our little girl is not quite ready for serious potty training. Any parent, Iâ€™m sure, understands the allure of not having to change diapers anymore, but itâ€™s something we all must accept. Thanks to the Clean Hands Changing Pad from SnoofyBee, accepting this fundamental part of parenting is much easier!

SnoofyBee recently sent me one of their Clean Hands Changing Pads to use and review, and I must say, diaper changes have become quite pleasant less messy. At first glance, it looked like a modern day sun reflector used to tan your face years ago.

But, this changing pad actually helps parents keep their cool by keeping their kidsâ€™ and their own hands free of pee or poo. I donâ€™t know about your kids, but Averyâ€™s curious little grabby hands seem to gravitate directly to the mess before us when changing her diaper. This leads to to us quickly trying to correct her movement only to end up with both of our hands tainted by poo.

Unless youâ€™re one of the lucky ones with a kid that patiently remains idle as you clean and change them, you know what Iâ€™m talking about. I was skeptical of the Clean Hands Changing Pad at first, so I just kept it in the car to use when on the go. Well, one day as we were on the go, she went, meaning t it was time to put the SnoofyBee to the test.

The result? Easy-peasy! The velcro attachment for the barrier to keep her hands mess-free was simply to put on and worked like a charm. Plus, the high quality material folds up easily after using and conveniently holds diapers and wipes inside.

Just toss it in a purse or diaper bag and youâ€™re good to go! SnoofyBeeâ€™s instructions help ease any reservations you have about how to use their changing pad, and even have a video to watch.

Easy, right? My only issue was the concern that Avery would absolutely hate having a cone around her head, but, with the exception of the first two times, this was not a problem. We even play peek-a-boo during changes where I hide behind the cone which yields sweet giggles every time. Raise your hand if youâ€™d like to hear your adorable childâ€™s giggles instead of whines as you clean their behinds?

I was going for a semi-rhyme there, just work with me. And I hope you raised your hands!

Now I confidently go out to run errands or to a trampoline park with the SnoofyBee in tow for any diaper changes. Before, I used to fear having to use whatever was available to the public for changing her, but now we have a safe, clean, and dependable changing pad. Here are the key features:

- Sides attach to create a barrier that keeps your babyâ€™s hands away from diaper mess
- Waterproof wipe-clean surface
- Portable hassle-free diaper changing anywhere
- Folds small for parents on the go

- Fits diapers, wipes and a change of clothes inside folded pad
- Padding keeps baby comfortable on any surface
- Baby's hands remain free to play
- Barrier adjusts to fit growing baby
- Certified safe and PVC free

I wish we had the SnoofyBee many months ago when Avery learned to squirm and wriggle about, but even now, at almost 2 years old, it's an awesome investment in a parent's mental state and everyone's hygiene.

Fear no poo or pee with the SnoofyBee!

SnoofyBee started with a goal of $15,000 on Kickstarter and now have almost $119k pledged as a result of happy parents all over. They will be funded today, 09/06/15 and you can get your own or give one as a gift \(or both\) now!

Check them out and see what's "changing" on Facebook, Twitter, and their website.

Have you tried the SnoofyBee Clean Hands Changing Pad?

Have you heard of or want to try?

How would you like to keep everyone's hands free of poo when changing?

Date Created
2015/09/06