

Reading "Hey! Wake Up!" By S. Boynton: Avery & Daddy Vlog Episode 2

Description

Almost every day, we begin by reading "Hey! Wake Up!". A cute board book written by Sandra Boynton. This has been the current routine for at least 2 months now, and Avery is finally starting to actually go through the moves as I read.

She still has some work to do with yawning and stretching, but touching her feet/toes and doing the "shimmy, shimmy, shimmy" gets better each day. As any parent knows, routines can and do change quickly, so my wife and I are trying to hold on to this one as long as possible.

Unlike our first Vlog episode where you were graced with staring at me holding Avery as she chewed a piece of food and I desperately tried to get her to do something, anything, she was more lively this time. She actually got upset when I turned the camera off, so maybe there's hope for more exciting vlogs from Avery and Daddy to come!

I'm trying to avoid editing anything and just posting the raw video we create each time. Obviously, there will be times when I need to shorten parts where everyone is off screen or because of some toddler mishap, but otherwise what you see is what I recorded. Time is precious, and there are flips to do and more books to read off camera!

By the way, our book collection keeps growing around here. Not only for Avery's sake, but for our sanity as well. Reading the same book about how Hippos Go Berserk! will drive anyone!..errrr, berserk! That said, it is a cute book and Going Mom's favorite.

Well, I'm typing with a left thumb that's missing a nice chunk from the tip. This makes it difficult to type, so I'm off to try and regrow some skin and enjoy the weekend with my girls. This weekend is going to be low key since we have a Fourth of July 5k to run next weekend!

What did you think about the second episode?

Any suggestions for what episode 3 should be like?

Date Created

2015/06/27